

The book was found

New Passages: Mapping Your Life Across Time

Synopsis

A provocative sequel to and a significant extension of Sheehy's international bestseller Passages. Sheehy finds a revolution in the adult life cycle as she traces not only radical changes in the earlier phases of the '20s, '30s, and '40s, but discovers and maps out the new frontier--a second adulthood in middle life.

Book Information

Hardcover: 498 pages

Publisher: Random House; 1 edition (June 6, 1995)

Language: English

ISBN-10: 0394589130

ISBN-13: 978-0394589138

Product Dimensions: 1.8 x 6.5 x 9.5 inches

Shipping Weight: 2.4 pounds

Average Customer Review: 3.8 out of 5 stars See all reviews (43 customer reviews)

Best Sellers Rank: #309,988 in Books (See Top 100 in Books) #91 in Books > Self-Help >

Mid-Life #356 in Books > Health, Fitness & Dieting > Men's Health > General #423 in Books >

Textbooks > Social Sciences > Psychology > Developmental Psychology

Customer Reviews

Sheehy offers an interesting categorization of life stages in the context of American life as she has known it and lived it. She uses excerpts from the hundreds of interviews she conducted throughout the United States while preparing this book to prove her theory. Her stages have catchy labels: Tryout Twenties, Turbulent Thirties, Flourishing Forties, Flaming Fifties, Serene Sixties. Sheehy's attempt to make meaning of the mature years is most likely to become an artifact of its era, unable to cross cultures or time. Her passages depend too heavily on life as it is being lived in the 1990s in the United States of America. With the work of Erikson and Jung on developmental aging already on the book shelf and thoughtful contributions by such as Friedan, Schacter-Shalomi and Miller, and others, Sheehy's contribution is disappointing.

"New Passages" gave me added enthusiasm as well as an explanation for what I, a woman at age 50, am feeling and experiencing. How wonderful that I am metamorphosing into a "second adulthood!" That the last few years of culling out what I don't want to do are leading towards a powerful purpose: living the rest of my life with ever-greater meaning and enjoyment. As with "The Silent Passage," which has given so many men and women a healthier perspective of menopause, "New Passages" has helped define a brighter and more exciting future for all of us who are growing into our 50's and beyond. Even my 86 year old mother understands better where she has been in her "2nd adulthood," enabling her to define the significance of her continuing life....to just live in integrity and serve as an example for all those around her. Sheehy quoted research which shows that our genetic heritage profoundly affects us until 60-65....but, after that, what we think and believe is what most profoundly affects how well we live. As in golf, "the game" is controlled by the 6" between our ears....

Conceptually excellent, but a dismally dreary read. Ever been at a cocktail party where you meet someone who tells an interesting story, but takes half an hour to do it, because of all the needless peripheral information. Sheehy personified. She fails to hold my attention with tediously drawn-out examples which lack pith and focus. A good editor would halve the length and double the value. The content is not bad, it just takes so damn long to get to the point. Very Ameri-centric.

I found Sheehy's second "Passages" book almost as good as the first. As an aging baby boomer, the issues of recharting my life direction at middle age has been daunting to say the least. Second Passages provided the structure for this process. I also suggest "The Second Journey" by T. Athey as another good book - more focus on the issues of the Baby Boomer generation. Platonix

Half way reading this book, and I had to give it a thumbs up already. Sheehy's analysis and narrative is hard hitting and brilliant. Your very life passage is written out in this book. Virtually everyone will identify with at least one of her narratives/passages. A must read for anyone interested in the philosophical aspects of LIFE!

Very interesting book about how our view/focus changes through each decade of our adult lives and what we have to look forward to. You might even learn what happy adults say they get the most joy from. Wouldn't that be useful information? I loved it but it is a long read, so buckle down!

The most interesting section of this book for me was right at the beginning where she describes the "endangered generation," those born from 1966-1980. While, I don't usually like to be called endangered, I could completely relate to the description of the troubles our generation is going through- how we have it worse off financially than our parents did in their twenties, and how that explains why we are floating in this in-between stage. This is happening just at the developmental stage in our lives when we'd feel a lot better if we had more financial freedom and didn't have to ask our parents for help. The stresses of dating, not being able to afford more than a cheap apartment (or worse- having to move back in with our parents), and being educated but in a competitive job market, take their toll. At this age, our parents were already married, owned their own home, and had a stable job. So things have changed a lot, and it helps to know that! It frees you to accept society as it is today and make the most of it. She ends the section with a positive prediction that our generation, expecting the least out of life after our disappointing start at adulthood, will end up very successful and appreciating what we have more than other generations. Sheehy is very insightful.

As readable as the original passages and helped me get across a few stumbling blocks in my own life. It helps to know the confusion we might be feeling is normal :) A must have for anyone wanting to make the most of each decade.

Download to continue reading...

New Passages: Mapping Your Life Across Time Hi-Lo Nonfiction Passages for Struggling Readers: Grades 6–8: 80 High-Interest/Low-Readability Passages With Comprehension Questions and Mini-Lessons for Teaching Key Reading Strategies Informational Passages for Text Marking & Close Reading: Grade 3: 20 Reproducible Passages With Text-Marking Activities That Guide Students to Read Strategically for Deep Comprehension Edinburgh: Mapping the City (Mapping the Cities Series) Life Coaching: Life Coaching Blueprint: Save A Life One Person At A Time (BONUS 30MINUTE Life Coaching Session- How To Motivate, Inspire, Change Your Life) Middle Passages (New Directions S) Understanding Men's Passages: Discovering the New Map of Men's Lives New England Ski Passages A Lifetime of Love: Poems on the Passages of Life Passages: Predictable Crises of Adult Life Solo Coastal Sailing: Upgrade your sailing skills to enable single-handed coastal or short off-shore passages Change Your Habits Change Your Life: Break Your Bad Habits, Break Your Addictions And Live A Better Life (Change Your Life, Stop Smoking, Stop Drinking, Stop Gambling, Stop Overeating) Brain Training And Brain Games for Memory Improvement: Concentration and Memory Improvement Strategies with Mind Mapping (New for 2015) The Mapping of New Spain: Indigenous Cartography and the Maps of the Relaciones Geograficas New World Courtships: Transatlantic Alternatives to Companionate Marriage (Re-Mapping the Transnational: A Dartmouth Series in American Studies) Boundaries of Home: Mapping for Local Empowerment (The New Catalyst Bioregional) 35 Reading Passages for Comprehension:

Inferences & Drawing Conclusions Scholia On Passages Of The Old Testament: Now First Ed. In
The Original Syriac, With An English Translation And Notes Tales from Ovid: 24 Passages from the Metamorphoses The Key to The Name of the Rose: Including Translations of All Non-English
Passages (Ann Arbor Paperbacks)

Dmca